

Queen Writes Christian Poetry Book for Ladies in Their 20's

DESIRE AND FEAR NOTHING- The young author urges women to believe in the power of being kind and living fearlessly.

March 11, 2008 - PRLog -- Miami, Florida- Miss Black South Florida, USA 2007, Diana Bien-Aime, will be sharing all of her wisdom and incite with young women in their twenties through her candid and colorful Christian poetry found in her latest book entitled The Lady Love of God; In her twenties.

Bien-Aime is a young Haitian-American author and poet that believes much can be done to help women between the ages of 18-29. "This is an age group that is often overlooked," said Bien-Aime. "My poems and words of encouragement let these women know they are forgotten." She uses unconventional rhythms and patterns in her poems and introduces each with pearls of wisdom. Bien-Aime's message to this age group is to desire and fear nothing. She encourages the readers to answer self analysis questions that conclude each chapter of poems. "Young women should assess their motives for action," said Bien-Aime. "Just because these ladies are of legal age to make decisions, doesn't mean they are making the wisest choices in discovering their authentic selves."

Bien-Aime indulges her readers with poetry on topics of self discovery, relationships, spiritual beliefs and career ambition. Copies are available for purchase on www.dabink.org.
