

CCTV Surveillance Systems Can Protect Small Businesses from Robbery or Theft

Having a monitored security system that includes a CCTV surveillance system can add a layer of protection to any small business that needs to protect its inventory and property from theft and burglary. Napco can provide that security system.

Feb. 13, 2009 - PRLog -- More and more small businesses are deploying CCTV surveillance systems to add a layer of security for their stores or offices. These systems can catch shoplifters in the act, can monitor exits and entrances and hidden areas that you can't see, and perhaps deter crime from happening if the potential perpetrator knows it will be caught on video.

Napco offers the unique iSee video surveillance software program which can be used with video cameras to keep tabs on any area of an office or small business. iSee video allows you to view activity at your place of business remotely via the Internet or a web-ready cell phone. This is not only good for catching thieves or robbers in the act, but is also a good way to keep tabs on employees and find out what their activity is while you are away from the store.

The iSee software can give your CCTV surveillance systems a much added boost. It works with any system of cameras and provides a reliable time and date stamp that can be used as evidence if you need to bring the authorities in. It captures and organizes all video surveillance from your small business. Your video is also secure from hacking.

The iSee video software program can be easily integrated with the Gemini Security System for Small Businesses. You get the benefit of a reliable monitored security system with all of the benefits that CCTV surveillance systems can provide a small business. When you are shopping for a security system, Napco is the name to trust for all your security system needs.
