June 30, 2010 - PRLog -- House cleaning is never an enjoyable experience. The scrubbing, moving, lifting and everything else that goes with cleaning can be completely tiring. Vacuuming, spraying chemicals, dusting blinds is a task that will exhaust the most fit house mom. Imagine moms now who are undergoing treatment for cancer and what that feeling is like?

Cleaning For A Reason has the answer for all women undergoing cancer treatment and still want a clean home. Cleaning For A Reason (C4R) is a national foundation that assists in providing free house cleaning for women who are undergoing treatment for cancer. C4R partners with professional maid services who are insured, bonded and perform background checks on employees. The maid services need to agree to take 2 patients at a time and offer a minimum of four free cleaning. C4R asks the residential cleaning services to provide one free clean a month for four months.

The process to register to receive free house cleaning is simple. Visit www.cleaningforareason.org and look under the location tab to see if any cleaning companies participate in your local area. If you view a cleaning company in your area click the "cancer patient" tab. Applications are accepted Monday – Thursday online. If you don't view a cleaning service in your area please visit the site each week as they're consistently updating with new maid services who are joining.
