

The Practicality of Buying Expensive Diamond Rings

Amidst the global economy crisis in the Euro zone, is buying luxury goods now at an end?

June 27, 2012 - PRLog -- Marbella, Spain – Is it practical to purchase expensive designer jewelleries amidst the global economic woe we are facing today? Many industries are feeling the pain of the economic crisis. As tailored designer jewellery is costly, it is no surprise these jewelleries are costly and just a few can truly afford it. This issue however did not deter Manuel Spinosa, who owns a well-known jewellery boutique in Malaga Spain.

With half a century of lineage in the jewellery-making industry and in the traditional brick and mortar store in Tarragona and Malaga, Manuel Spinosa designer jewelleries are now available on the web. As customized designer jewelleries are costly, this method makes it possible for those who are on a tight budget to buy their very own designer jewellery. Clients have the choice to find the gem cut, size, and type along with the metal band.

"We provide them with the choice to create their very own diamond rings or personalized it by engraving special messages around the ring. "Some clients have only spare time during the night. By doing this, they are able to check up on our product and select what they need. They can also check how much the ring will cost so they can budget it. Clients are able to then give us a call for appointment, saving them time from waiting at the store as well as fuel cost from going back and forth.," one of the jewellery assistant said.

What makes buying these jewelleries important and not just a luxury? "Handmade designer jewelleries are personalized and jewellers only create a limited quantity of their designs. If one wants something special to commemorate a special event like attending the London Olympics 2012 or a time in one's life like engagement or wedding. The jewelleries somehow immortalize the moment and it is like freezing it in time." Another assistant said. Other benefits include getting warranty for those jewelleries, cleaning services plus some.

Another great thing about designer jewelleries is that they are classics. One can wear them as every day fashion accessories or attending galas, Oscars and charity events. Diamond rings are for example extremely popular because a well-crafted diamond ring does not depreciate but increases its value in time.

Clients have the advantage of knowing that she or he is the only person who is the owner of the jewellery set. Quality are also strictly observed and such as the diamonds from Manuel Spinosa collection, all diamonds originated from the well known HRM gemstone in Antwerp, Belgium so customers are assured their gemstone designer jewelleries are truly unique.
