No special skills are required, and one need not be an experienced crafter to create the perfect invitation to announce a dream wedding. Basic word processing knowledge and a printer make the project a pleasure; inkjet printers are acceptable, although laser printers and copiers will give more lasting durability. The layered invitations were designed to be made easily and consist of a heavyweight background cards pre-cut to the correct size to fit in their envelopes and standard (easy to print) 8.5×11 overlay made for ink jets, lasers and copiers. Using the free word processing templates, the process is simple: just change the wording, print and cut ...no tiny sheets to setup and try to print on!

With these easily understood video instructions and an extensive line of inexpensive and unique earth-friendly materials, making one's own wedding invitations can be affordable as well as enjoyable. Traditional design ideas as well as the contemporary are available using current trends and time-honored sophisticated materials and embellishments. Use ideas recommended on the site or mix and match to make an invitation one's own.

Formal-Invitations.com has been helping couples create distinctive diy wedding invitations since 1991, offering high quality, environmentally responsible materials at an affordable price. With the addition of new how-to videos, they are making the process easier still. They are listed in the National Green Pages and approved for people and planet by Co-Op America.
