

Financial Analyst Terry Sacka Breaks Down All American Government and Consumer Debt

In debt there are hidden costs and penalties that have historically kept the US and Americans in its grasp. Terry Sacka, AAMS breaks down why this is happening and how to move away from the causes of ever-accruing debt.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. - Sept. 30, 2018 - PRLog -- On a recent episode of the Wealth Transfer show, Mr. Sacka opened with the Federal Reserve Economic Data (FRED) chart detailing debt from all sectors: securities, loans, and liabilities which has recently exceeded 100 trillion.

He made the statement, "We have debt at such extraordinary levels over the last two or three years, the economy has probably already started correcting toward a recession in 2015. So we're on borrowed time."

This and more charts can be seen in the video below:

Mr. Sacka has also made the statement, "I believe we are in a cyclical economic recovery very similar to 2008 where we may be secular in a bull market but we will eventually see a cyclical bear. Depending on how the world handles it, there could be a 40% - 50% correction."
